Putting California's Wealth to Work for a More Equitable Economy

SENATE BUDGET PLAN

INTRODUCTION

- » California's rebounding economy is strong, but increasingly, wealth has gone to the top while leaving the middle class and struggling families behind.
- » Additionally, inflation and high energy prices brought on by world events & corporate greed are hurting the middle class and struggling families.
- » Thankfully, California's common sense, voter-approved revenue system ensures those that have prospered the most contribute their share.
- » "Putting Wealth to Work" builds on last year's Senate Plan, providing further opportunity to put California's wealth to work to build a more equitable economy.

Putting California's Wealth to Work for a More Equitable Economy

SENATE BUDGET PLAN

INTRODUCTION

- » “Putting Wealth To Work” is based on the latest fiscal information and adds $65 billion* in combined current year and budget year revenues to the Governor’s forecast.
- » This results in $68 billion of total unallocated General Fund resources, up from $29 billion in January forecast, and $37 billion of total unallocated Proposition 98 resources, up from $13 billion in January forecast.
- » “Putting Wealth to Work” reflects the significant economic uncertainty in the nation and the world and continues responsible budgeting:
 - Allocates one-time revenues for one-time purposes.
 - Builds reserves to historic levels to protect ongoing programs from future economic downturns.

(*Based on very early update from LAO, official May forecasts from LAO and DOF will likely differ)

Putting California’s Wealth to Work for a More Equitable Economy

INTRODUCTION

»» “Putting Wealth to Work” includes bold priorities throughout the entire budget, but it is important to set expectations with understanding that not everything will be achieved this year.

Reasons include:

- Fiscal estimates used are preliminary and will be adjusted once the official forecasts are completed in May.
- The Final Budget will need to be negotiated with the Assembly and then the Governor.

»» Priorities outlined in “Putting Wealth to Work” that are not achieved this year will still benefit from being elevated as Senate priorities, helping their inclusion in future budgets.

SENATE BUDGET PLAN

A NOTE REGARDING GANN

- » The Gann Limit has become relevant for the first time in a generation due primarily to the past decade of responsible budgeting, a healthy economy, and voter approved revenues.
- » “Putting Wealth To Work” budget plan, however, does not reflect any budget allocation decisions in direct response to Gann Limit constraints. Instead, with LAO option of updating the definition of local subventions and budget decisions naturally made, this budget plan is under the Gann Limit through 2021-22 and 2022-23.
- » But, in the near future baseline spending growth will exceed the Gann Limit, resulting in the absurd requirement that core programs would need to be cut even though the overall budget can continue to support them.
- » Therefore, by 2024 a constitutional amendment will be needed to harmonize and modernize the Constitution to ensure core programs like health care, higher education, and public safety can continue to be funded and not artificially constrained by the out-of-date Gann Limit.

Putting California's Wealth to Work for a More Equitable Economy

SENATE BUDGET PLAN

CONCLUSION

» “Putting Wealth to Work” is a product of:

- A thriving economy – but with the benefits going mostly to the wealthiest;
- A commonsense, voter-approved revenue system that results in the wealthiest paying their share, without impacting their financial success; and
- A decade of responsible budgeting by Democrats in full control of the state’s finances.

» Together, the Senate Budget Plan puts California’s wealth to work to build a more equitable economy and to improve the lives of struggling Californians and middle income families.
